

Hello friends,

Hope all is well with you! As I sit here and watch the final round of the Players Championship on this glorious Mothers Day, I can't help but think about our Players Championship, the ECI only 7 days away.

It was a long winter, filled with snow, more snow, and yes, more snow. Thank god it's over. About a month ago I was promoted to head boys varsity basketball coach at Fairfield Ludlowe High School. Very excited about the opportunity to build our program in the coming years and hopefully compete for conference and state titles!

Speaking of titles, I would love to win another this week at the ECI. It's one of my favorite events on the calendar all year long. It won't be easy with some great players in the field as always, but I will give it my best and prepare the best I can this week.

Looking forward to seeing everyone in a few days. Safe travels!
