We all have them. Trees that were damaged by one of the several storms this past year. If you were fortunate, they didn't fall on your house, car, or neighbor's garage. You've probably been keeping your fingers crossed that maybe, just maybe, the torn limb will sort of magically repair itself. Now that the snow has melted, you can actually get out there and take a closer look at the damage. While you are out there, TAKE PICTURES!!! Ed Gregan, from Carlton Plants, wants to help you determine how best to take care of your damaged trees and shrubs. Gentle pruning, severe cut back, or worse case scenario, cutting your tree down completely. These are tough decisions for homeowners. Let our expert friend, Ed tell you what needs to be done. Email the pictures of your damaged plant material before this workshop, so that Ed can take a look at them. (Please do not bring them in on your cameras the day of the workshop - Those photos are just too small to be of any use). Email pictures to Tsmith5@snet.net. Please include your name, phone number, and identify the tree if possible. Ed will take a look at the pictures before our session, and will use them to help teach everyone how to properly take care of the storm damage. Sounds like a session that lots of our customers should try to come for.
